

CLEGG OUT - ALL OUT !

The release of Para Lee Clegg, who served only two years of a life sentence for the murder of Karen Reilly, is a political decision designed to appease the British establishment which has campaigned relentlessly on his behalf.

The hypocrisy of the British government is clearly evident when they deny the existence of political prisoners, and this should be constantly exposed.

Lee Clegg is a prisoner of the political conflict here - only one of many thousands. The British government and its apologists must not be allowed to make Clegg a special case.

Clegg's release in isolation from others is an added insult considering Irish prisoners imprisoned over 20 years and who still have no indication from the British government of their release - or even transfer to prisons closer to their families.
