A CONSPIRACY OF THE HYSTERIA whipped up by the British Government in the SILENCE

Press and Television regarding the trials of Russian dissidents in Moscow over the last two weeks, and the condemnation that the sentences passed were excessive and could lead to serious injury to the health of the dissidents due to the rigours of the Russian penal system is undeniably the clearest and most recent example of British hyprocrisy and duplicity when it comes to commenting on the denial of basic human rights to prisoners.

The British decry foreign regimes for violating codes safeguarding human dignity, while in Britain and here in the occupied six counties they promote a judical system which arrogantly denies the dissident justice and daily passes terms of imprisonment ranging from three years to

Over the last two years they have unmercilessly unleashed a reign of naked brutality both inside and outside the prison walls.

Within the last few days in the notorious 'H' Blocks their actions have reached new depths of depravity.

The screws now are physic ally holding down young prisoners, (already weakened by the strain of almost two years of nakedness, solitary confinement and undernourishment) and forcibly searching their back passage, before and after visits.

ATTACK

In a statement smuggled out to "Republican News" the PRO of H3 details the latest incident in the long Brit history of prison brutality.

"In H3 over the last few days there has been a marked increase in the use of the "strip-search" before and after visits.

"In one instance a young prisoner was turned upside down by four screws while a medical officer prodded his back passage. From today Republican Prisoners in H3 will be refusing all visits rather than be put through this degrading experience

The meagre but welcomed comfort these men get from a monthly visit is being wrenched from them by these latest excesses

MEDIA SILENCE

We can expect no clammering from the pro Brit press or T.V. to comment on or interview any of the relatives of Republican prisoners, many of whom have not seen their son or daughter in almost two years.

The silence by the media on reporting the dehumanising conditions existing in Long Kesh a despicable example of censorship cases self-imposed). The relegation by journalists of the prisoners protest for political status to merely a "dirt-strike" or "nowash campaign" is contempible.

area demonstrations to build up support for a mass demonstration from Coalisland to Dungannon on August 20th was held in Lower Falls area on Sunday July 9th. The demonstration was organised by the Central Relatives Action Committee and Divis Flats/Lower Falls R.A.C.

About two hundred people walked in the procession, led by the local band, through the small streets of the Falls, towards the Divis flats complex where a public meeting was

Central RAC gave a brief history of almost two years of struggle the prisoners in their attempts status. He pointed out that the attempt by the British Government to portray the Republican struggle as a criminal escapade had failed. He said: "However we can only claim victory when the prisoners now naked in the 'H' Blocks and 'B' Wing, Crumlin are wearing their own clothes and receiving visits like human beings, without being degraded by body searches."

The next speaker from the Falls RAC reminded the people of Divis Flats that the first man on the blanket protest symbolised the iron will of the P.O.W's when he stated the only way the authorities would get criminal uniform on him would be to nail it to his back. She called on the people to support all pickets and protests designed to highlight the bardirected against Republican prisoners

The mother of an 'H' Block prisoner said that "the prisoners were going through hell fighting their right to political status. The prisoners depend on us to keep up the struggle ide. We must not fail them.

Closing the meeting the chairperson said:

"In marching on the streets, we are not only saluting the sacrifice of the prisoners in local gaols, but also the sacrifice made by Irish prisoners in English gaols, who have recently stepped up their protest for political status."

A SERIES of twelve successful H-Block protests were held in Wexford Town recently. These meetings were organised by the Padraig O Pearaill Sinn Fein Cumann Wexford, in conjunction with the Derry RAC.

The meetings were extended over a period of three days and were addressed by three Derry mothers, draped in blankets. Several thousand people heard these mothers, tell of the horrors of H-Block and a total of 4,500 leaflets and other literature was distributed.

in the circumstances, and reality slowly wiy dawned on them all. We don't expect this incident to cause a change in Mason's murder policy. All that it has done is serve to expose exactly what the Brits intend to do and how they have the lies prepared in advance of "a kill". Had a volunteer been killed instead of John Boyle then the Brits would have "leaked" to "friendly journalists" that they acting on information and would have milked the utmost divisive effect incident, as they attempted to do with the slur against 'Republican News' over the Ballysillan slaughter, and the SAS murder of Paul Duffy ("acting on information given during the questioning of three other suspects").

Incidentally, John Boyle was buried on Thursday as was RUC Constable Turbitt from Richill, whose body the IRA had returned the previous Sunday. Commenting on the burials 'Downtown Radio' with its doublethink and dual standards reported that "Hundreds of people are attending the funerals today of Constable William Turbitt murdered by the IRA. and 16-year-old John Boyle killed by the British Army on Tuesday.

According mythology the British Army have never murdered a person in

The fact that three of the SAS men were armed with Armalites (as they were in the Ballysillan stake-out) is important. The public has been told that soldiers are using them because Armalites are lighter, more mobile and more efficient than the 7.62am self loading rifle (SLR). This is nonsense The SLR is one of the most destructive of modern rifles; its weight can be reduced and the butt modified to fold back if concealment is a priority or operational conditions demand it. Without even going to these lengths the Brits have at their disposal other deadly weapons with a calibre distinguishable from the IRA's arsenal. It is that last point which is the real reason for the Armalite's use.

The increasing use of this apon is because of the new policy of assassination and execution against any IRA Volunteer caught in a vulnerable position, armed or unarmed, At least one "phantom" Volunteer with an Armalite must always "escape", in the event of civilians getting "caught in the crossfire".

With a policy of slaughter the Brits need that their ammunition is indistinguishable from IRA ammunition, otherwise embarrassing post-mortems would give

THE "GLORIOUS TWELFTH"

THE "GLORIOUS TWELFTH" with its "carnival" type trappings was the theme of all the pro-orange broadcasters on both Television and Radio reporting 12th July demonstrations from around the Six Counties. Listening to the commentators one could quite easily fall into the trap of believing that the "traditional" orange processions were nothing more significant than a day's outing for the family ending up with a fun-filled picnic, at the field.

The heavy media coverage ensured that the message of protestant supremacy reached every corner of the six occupied counties

This year saw the renewal of the Orange processions in County Donegal for the first time in eight years.

As to the role of the Orange in maintaining the partition of Ireland, the Orangemen reigned triumphant.

Keady Town in County Armagh, was the setting this year for a huge show of force by the Orangemen. The dictum that "no town or road is closed to the Orange Order" is as true today as ever.

This small Nationalist town was invaded by the RUC and Orangemen for most of the day.

The local people decided to close all the business premises (and pubs!) and ignore the parade through their town.

We were assured by UTV's reporter in Keady that the local people welcomed the Orange "politeness"

No amount of window dressing by the BBC. · UTV or Downtown Radio of the Orange Orders role in the six occupied counties will fool those people who don't want to be fooled.

A brief look at some of the speeches made by leading Orangemen confirms the belief held by many people that this pro-Brit institution still retains its grip on the infra-structure of the six counties.

The Loyalist M.P. at West-Harold McCusker defending the torturers in the RUC said. "Let us not desert these men. I know of no innocent man behind bars because he signed a confession.

TOMÁS AGAIN

Thomas Passmore, Grandmaster of Belfast, called for sterner "security" measures: "Every political shackle must be forces, so that they can get on with the job of rooting out terrorists. We told Mr. Mason about the IRA bolt holes such as Crossmaglen, Andersonstown and the Bogside, last year when we demanded an end to the Poleglass Housing Scheme".

No doubt one of Mr. Pass more's marching friends, a leading member of the Housing Executive in Belfast will assist in delaying the building of The marching Orangemen and their leaders were in no doubt about their role of defending the British crown in Ireland

The spirit of revived triumphalism was evident on all the platforms as the Orange leaders spat out their well worn cliches of "staying British" and "strengthening the link" with Britain.

Their message was unambiguous, the Six counties belongs to them, and that's the way they intend to keep it.

UNSCRUPULOUS MEN

The 12th demonstrations were once again used by the Unionist unscrupulous politicians in clerical and lay garb to whip up religious sectarianism which ensures their political majority and unfortunately the mass of protestants are inextricably tied to the Unionist dream of "Not an inch".

Pawns on the international chess-board of human rights

ALEXANDER GINSBURG and Anatoly Shcharansky have become over the past few weeks international pawns in the chess game of debate between the power blocks of East and West "Enemies of the Russian state" hereos of the 'free' West", the political repression of both eclipsed by the political opportunism of the world's "Big

It is not long ago at a Washington meeting of the head of NATO, presided over by U.S. President Jimmy Carter that he took the opportunity to re-emphasise one of his favourite - Human Rights. Applauding enthusiastically on the same platform was Britain's Prime Minister James Callaghan.

Carrying the British governbanner of political commitment to safeguarding human rights at a meeting of E.E.C. Foreign Ministers, around the same time was British Foreign Secretary David Owen insisting that any financial assist ance given to third world countries should be monitored against their flexibility in the field of human rights.

Between the NATO meeting in Washington, the E.E.C. Ministerial meeting and the present 'trials' of Ginzberg and Shcharansky, Amnesty International published a réport on the repression of Irish political dissidents by the British government. The report indicated that there was systematic torturing of political dissidents apparently authorised at the highest level (Roy Mason) while questioning the entire dubious structure of law enforcement, known locally as the RUC "shuttle service" Through this method political dissidents are tortured into making self incriminating statelegally interned by (up to 2 years), remand through non-jury processed courts (where the only 'evidence' against them is the statement which is accepted by the politically motivated 'judge') and then the political dissident is sent to the horrors of Long notorious H-Blocks Amnesty International called for an open public enquiry into the treatment of political dissidents in the occupied six counties. Since the Amnesty Report was published, confirming for the second time in 12 months that the British government is torturing political dissidents in the occupied six counties, there has been virtually no comment from the international crusaders of human rights. Far from reproaching the British government U.S. President Jimmy Carter seems, if not actively, then through his silence (supported by Senator Edward Kennedy), to be attempting to Mario Biaggi's Sen. THE DUNLOY KILLING — WHAT MASON PROMISED

"Finally, we are just getting reports of a shooting incident in the Dunloy area of County Antrim. The army in a statement just issued said that at 10.22 a.m. a patrol challenged three men seen armed and carrying bombs. They say that one of the terrorists ran off when challenged and was shot and wounded.

'We'll have a full report of that incident in our next Bull-That was how Belfast's 'Downtown Radio' originally announced on the 11 a.m. News, Tuesday 11th July, the summary execution by the SAS of 16-year-old Dunloy youth The circumstances of the shooting and the immediate release of a "prepared" statement (telexed within 20 minutes of the incident) by the British army at Thievaul Barracks claiming that a "terrorist" had been shot followed a familiar pattern of SAS activity in recent months which has left unarmed IRA Volunteers Paul Duffy, Dennis Heaney, Jacki Mealy, Dinny Brown, Jim Mulvenna, all dead civilian William Hanna dead, and civilians Bobby Gamble and Dessy Mackin seriously injured.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES

However, the lying machine at Thiepaul Barracks ran into serious trouble, and the routine "credible" statements which usually salve the media's conscience backfired.

On Monday night (10th July), Mr. Cornelius Boyle was attending a family grave in Dunloy graveyard along with his son John. John discovered a black plastic bag under a headwhich he couldn't remove, That evening Mr. Boyle telephoned Ballymoney RUC Barracks about the find, telling them the exact spot where it was concealed.

From what happened next it is clear that all RUC Barracks are under instructions to immediately contact local military Headquarters, and not to remove arms' dumps which have been discovered.

The RUC rang Ebrington Barracks in Derry, and during the night the SAS sent in a team who verified that an armalite rifle was in the bag. (They probalso removed ammunition just be 200% sure that their victim, to be executed anyway, couldn't defend himself). The four SAS men (3-with armalites, one with an they would have got the bullet SLR) then staked out the graveyard from two position, one being only 10 yards from the arms dump, and waited on a "contact" with presumably IRA volunteers.

THE KILLING

The next morning John Boyle and his brother Hugh were in a on their way to a hayfield. John left his brother and was curious to see if the suspicious bag had been removed yet. So he walked into the graveyard and approached the spot.

The SAS quickly opened fire. He was shot five times. The post-mortem later showed that the fatal shot entered the back of his head, with an exit wound out his left eye. (The army in a second statement at 6.00 p.m. said that John saw two soldiers, lifted the Armalite and pointed it at them, and that they then shot him. They would have been safer sticking to their first statement which said "one terrorist was shot as he ran off". It too would have collapsed but at least ounds in the right place).
The SAS then ran out onto the road and arrested Hugh, brought him into the field where he was made to lie on the ground for 2% hours. He heard one soldier say to a colleague, "there's another bastard lying dead around the corner".

The Father originally tipped-off the RUC arrived on the scene and he then was made lie on the ground for an hour. As far as the SAS were concerned they had captured three "terrorists". The Godfathers of state violence when contacted at Thiepaul Rarracks were ecstatic. Mason was doubtlessly overjoyed (this is what he had promised), and the propaganda machine swung into action with the 'prepared' statement.

Meanwhile the local RUC arrived about an hour after the shooting and found their informant lying in the field surrounded by SAS. Mr. Boyle was lucky enough to be alive

Our volunteers were observed after dark by a Mrs Mackin digging along the road verge to conceal a bomb which was meant for the Crown forces. The following morning Mrs Mackin reported what she had seen to a woman friend on the Dundalk Road and she mentioned that the men had been digging at "The Dirty Hollow". In casual conversation, the information was told to Patrick McEntee, who three days later, met is British contact at their pre-arranged point, Ballytample Viewpoint, and informed him of the bomb on the Monog Road. The British Army then immediately avoided the road until it was sailed off and they inquired from local people where "The Dirty Hollow" was located. New cumann formed in Dundalk

At A meeting held recently to establish another new Cumann of Sinn Fein and presided over by Ard Comhairle representative Fra Browne and the Comhairle Ceantair organiser Louth Pat Duffy, in the Muirevnamore estate of Dundalk, the following officer board was elected; Chairman, Frank Duffy; Secretary, M. Duffy; Treas-urers, S. Murphy and J. Grimes; P.R.O./Vice Chairman, A. Smith.

Delegates to the Comhairle Ceantair will be selected at the next meet

The members and officer board selected a name for the Cumann and after some discussion they decided to call their cumann after two local Republicans who although fought in different periods of the struggle for freedom had the same ideals and objective to rid our country of the British war machine.

The two names they decided on were the late Paddy Duffy who died on the 1st of March '78 and Daniel Downey who died as a result of ill-treatment and hunger strike on the 10th June 1923, thus the Cumann will be known as the "Duffy/Downey Cumann Muirhevnamore".

Anyone wishing to join the above Cumann can do so by contacting the secretary, Mrs. M. Duffy No 46 3, Muirhevnamore.

 BUSINESS MAFIA DENOUNCED

 ONE OF the most ugly and sinister developments of the present freedom struggle has been the emergence and consolidation of what can only be termed a business Mafia, a conglomeration of groups and individ-uals who have deliberately decided to reap a rich harvest from the sufferings, uncertainties, and opportunities for exploitation which every war creates.

In Derry there exists a group of these unscrupulous individuals who have bought up the city, either as owners themselves or as frontmen for other businessmen. They own all the land, all the business premises, the pubs, bookie's shops, clubs, etc.

All the sordid aspects of exploitation are to be seen in their dealings - the summary dismissal of staff, the rapid interchange of business concerns, all designed to increase profit for businessmen, lawyers and accountants.

We have seen the rise of a totally unscrupulous type of "good" Catholic capitalist in Derry. These pillars of the church have cynically exploited the people's fight for liberation and have climbed to economic and social power on the backs of the unemployed, the prisoners, the poor, the uneducated.

These people are the equivalent of the black marketeers who crawl from under stones during all wars, dealing in misery despair, parasites glorying in unrest and the opportunity to prey upon a land and an economy in turmoil.

They have succeeded in almost sewing up the business life of Derry.

Derry has had enough of faceless men; those who denied us the university. those who murdered Sam Devenney, those who now sit and plan the future of our city. But faceless men and have been fied and their can identified activities can and have been exposed.

The church in Derry are quick to condemn the liberation struggle and activities of dedicated political revolutionaries. When have they ever passed even a word of comment on the activities of the business parasites who have degraded this city by their greed, their cynicism and their blatant exploitation?

And what of the high moral tone so beloved by by the local press? No turgid editorials on exploitation. Priest and press alike deny the people's right to free their land yet tolerate business tyrants draining our city's life-blood.

Political and economic reasons for ghettoisation

SINN FEIN regrets the movement of Protestants from the city side to the Waterside of Derry. Any "ghettoisation" of Irish people according to religion is always a source of deprivation. We need the talents of all Irishmen and Irishwomen - of all religious persuasions and of no religious persuasion - to build a new Ireland fit for all the people to live in. ALL the Irish people have a contribution to make it the New Ireland.

But we disagree with Councillor Bertie Faulknor, who cites "the past ten years of violence" as the reason for the "slow attrition of Protestants" from the West Bank of the Foyle to the East. We reject any attempt to put this serious problem into a sectarian context, while overlooking the genuine and far more important political and economic

Cllr. Faulkner claims "we are going to have a situation where children will be brought up in a large ghetto environment, mixing and playing only with their own kind."

The dirty work of the "ahettoisation" of Derry was accomplished long ago by the Unionist gerrymander of our city, well known to everyone. The only ones who escaped this "ghettoisation" where those who were wealthy enough to buy private housing, and live where they choose.

Furthermore, those who are employed, are more able to take advantage of the new private housing which estates. have primarily been built in the Waterside.

This brings up the main cause of the population shift from the West to the Industry and Employ-ment including local government offices, have led the movement from West to East. This is seen in everything from the building of the univer-sity (in Coleraine), to Corporation and Commission Offices, the shirt factories, and the big new industries such as DuPont, Courtaulds, etc. The gross discrepancy in employment between Catholics and Protestants in the Six Counties and especially in Derry is well-known to all. An employed labour force is more mobile than one massively i unemployed for years and even generations, and furthermore has motivation to move closer to their place of work.

Not alone does the lack of employment on the City side cause a shift in population by those likely to more employed but the dearth of basic amenities on the city side is a significant factor as well. The total and absolute refusal of the authorities to provide a hospital or even a 25-hour emergency health clinic service on the city side is another consideration for many families who are in that fortunate financial position to be able to choose where they will live. One must take into consideration that it takes 22 minutes to get to Altnagelvin in cases of emergency, from parts of the city side.

In addition, a further motivation for some Protestants to move to the Waterside was an artificial fear, (deliberately created by certain politicians for their own advantage) of proposals to re-draw the Border at the Foyle to rope the city side of Derry into the Free State, and leaving the Waterside in the Six Counties.

While ghettoisation retards the development of a people's potential, the reasons for this unfortunate situation must

Since the participation of the sluagh at the Bodenstown Commemoration, recruitment has increased, and several public engagements have been planned including a slide show of their trip.

In addition to Bodenstown Commemoration, the San Francisco Fianna took part in the laying of a wreath at the birth-place of Wolfe Tone in Dublin on Bodenstown Eve.

The following week they placed a wreath in a private ceremony at the Republican plot in Ballina in memory of Frank Stagg and Michael Gaughan.

Other activities included visits to the San Fein advice centers in Derry and the Falls and Andersontown in Belfast. A short side trip was made to Crossmaglen in South Armagh.

The tour of the Cathal Brugha Sluagh was a success because of the enthusiastic co-operation of Republicans, both as organizations and as individuals. visited him, his face was badly swollen and there were aches and bruises all over his body from the battering he got. On Tuesday his family phoned Long Kesh and was told that he was waiting to go back to the hosp-

Worried the family phoned Mrs. Gallagher of the Derry P.O.W. Welfare Worker. She investigated and reported to the family that he was held in the Royal Victoria Hospital. The family phoned there and was given permission to visit him. Transport was arranged for for his mother, father, aunt and his granny who hadn't seen him since his arrest.

At 7.10 pm, the family arrived at the Royal Victoria Hospital and was informed that Bosco had been removed to Musgrave Park Military Hospital at 5.30 pm. The family had not been told of this despite the fact that they have a phone, didn't leave Derry until 5.45 pm. However, at 6.10 pm a phone call from a Sergeant Hicks was received, informing them of the move, Bosco Doherty's brother told him that the family had already left for Belfast, and at this Sergeant Hicks told them to go ahead, and a visit would be arranged at Musgrave Park.

When the worried family finally got to Musgrave Park, they met with the most deliberately cruel treatment possible. An RUC member, Sergeant Ferguson (No. 3034) stood at the doorway and shouted "there is no way you are getting in to see him.

A Marine Commando stood RUC Sergeant Ferguson, with a baton in one hand and a revolver in the other, blocking the doorway to their son's hospital ward. At one stage the family was told bluntly, You're not getting in. I'm the boss." When the family asked if an allowance could be made for the granny to visit, the RUC sergeant shouted, "No, I'd need a policewoman to search her." The family enquired why this wasn't possible, but only got Sgt. Ferguson shouting louder, "No. no. you're not getting in, any of you."

"It was as if he wanted my son to hear our anguish and this harsh treatment", said Mrs Doherty later.

At this stage, Sergeant Ferguson shouted, "Get!" and banged the door in the faces of the Doherty family and a heavy bolt across it.

Such vicious treatment not only of Don Bosco Doherty, of his family is typical of the 'break them at attitude of the Brits, the RUC and the screws.

Only ten days ago four screws, Jamison, Courtenay, Kennedy and Savage beat another young Derryman Pinta McKnight, into a hospital ward for the "crime" of refusing to drink salted water given to him by these screw. Such savagery will surely be remembered

SPEARHEAD

THE ARTICLE below is a review of 'Suspect' (Episode I of the new TV series 'Spearhead'), a supposedly down-toearth version of life inside the British army. The review is written by Jan Taylor of London Sinn Fein who spent nine years in the British Army from 1961 to 1970.

Episode IV of the series (The Jackal') due to be broadcast on the eve of the seventh annivarsary of internment is also about the North of Ireland, Predictably this episode is to be banned from UTV.

Episode 1 - SUSPECT

This first episode of Spearhead, produced by Southern inevitable romantic flavour, T.V. and networked on Tues All the personnel of a tv day July 18th was set in the North of Ireland. This series the loud mouth Cockney, the is not a documentary or even a aggressive bully, the quiet one be faced. What the producers have done is to create images, distroted images, that bear little resemblance to the real situation. In so doing they have depoliticised the imperialist presence in Ireland and the Republican struggle against it.

The facts about the British presence in Ireland are well documented. The torture, the raids, assaults and cold-blooded murders by uniformed and plain clothes troops have been verified by Amnesty International and the European Court of Human Rights.

The appearance of this programme at this particular time is no accident. The public image, not to mention the morale, of British troops is at its lowest point. So STV has set out to econstruct the image of good old British Tommy, always in the firing line but bravely battling on, keeping to the rules of the game even when his advers-

This first episode concerns a stake-out by troops of an isolated farmhouse in South Antrim, A young woman is suspected of being a carrier of bombs for Frank the bomber. That is all we ever get to know about him. The woman speaks but only to British soldiers. She is aggressive and sullen, hardly surprising when troops are ransacking her house. She has no name and there is no relationship with Frank, they are never seen together. Not only is there no relationship between Frank and the woman but they have no relationship with the rest of the community. This is symbolised by the isolated farmhouse. Frank never speaks, we glimpse him once and what little we get to know of him comes only through the mouths of his pursuers.

On the other hand the Brits are shown as individuals, each with his own name and personal identify. They relate to each criminalising the struggle for other (or attempt to, the quality national self determination in of acting is about one notch above Crossroads) and one even has his wife with him, to give the

All the personnel of a typical Army barrack room are there, semi-documentary, therefore the and even a black soldier who is facts of real life don't have to protected by his mates from racist jibes, they're the only ones allowed to insult him.

So the images are created, the Brits are the real people, the bombers are superficial, devoid of any personality. The situation is non-political, the bombers could as easily be bank robbers and the troops ordinary policemen just like in 'Kojak' 'Dixon of Dock Green'.

UNITE FOR POW STATUS

In reality the reverse is nearer the truth. Army training in general and Infantry training in particular is designed to produce a soldier, who is dependent on orders from his "superiors", who doesn't question those orders, who is deprived of his individuality and who becomes one of a squad.

The Irish man or woman planting bombs is part of a mass movement, not isolated from the nationalist community but part of that community. Why they risk their lives to plant bombs is a question that is never answered, indeed the question is never asked.

It would be tempting to dismiss the series as rubbish, as doubtless people in the nationalist areas of the six counties will do, Unfortunately the pro-Brit image of this programme is being specifically aimed at the British working people. Many working class people in Britain will be left with the impression tha "their" 'boys in uniform" are doing a thankless task dealing with "psychopathic killers". It is an impression that must be countered at every opportunity. It is the duty of revolutionaries in Britain to defend and solidarise with the armed struggle against British imperialism. The best way to do that at present is to unite around the demands of Republican prisoners for P.O.W. status and not to allow the British state to succeed in Ireland.

PRISONERS' MARCH -A BIG SUCCESS

ABOUT FIVE thousand demonstrators marched behind the Irish tri-colour through London on July 9th demanding Political Status for Republican prisoners in Ireland and Britain.

The march initiated by the Prisoners Aid Committee was the largest demonstration through London in support of the Irish struggle since Bloody Sunday 1972. Marchers leading the demonstration carried placards with the names of over 80

Republican prisoners in English jails, and banners listing the English gaols the prisoners are being held in.

Attending the march were contingents from Sinn Fein, PAC, International Marxist Group, Big Flame, Workers Revolutionary Party, Socialist Workers Party, Troops Out Movement, Revolutionary Communist Tendency, Irish Republican Socialist Party, Revolutionary Communist Group and branches of many trades unions.

The parade surrounded by a heavy escort of London police left Hyde Park after being addressed by a number of speakers. They included Jim Reilly of Luton Sinn Fein, Jacqueline Kaye of Prisoners Aid Committee and other speakers from British Left Wing groups. A statement of support from Sinn Fein Vice-President, Daithi O'Conail, was also read out.

Mid-way through the large procession was a truck with a mock-up cage containing two men wrapped in blankets depicting conditions inside the 'H' Blocks.

An encouraging sign was the number of trade union banners. Among these were A.S.T.M.S. Manchester Central, T.G.W.U. Central London Branch, A.S.T.M.S. Edinburgh, Harringey Trades Council, N.U.J. Book Branch, National Federation of Claimants Union and T.G.W.U. Cowley Assembly Plant. Many other banners from British Left Wing groups were also carried.

The central theme of the speakers addressing the march was one of unity amongst anti-imperialists against British rule in Ireland. This large and impressive display of unity and enthusiasm in defence of the prisoners is a welcome development given the normal passivity of the British Left in the face of the Irish war.

We print below edited extracts from those of the main speeches given by speakers from the PAC, UTOM and RCG.

"Human Rights" is a phrase on the lips of every carpet down finally the hell-holes of bagging politician: from Jimmy

Carter to Jim Callaghan, But none of them want to mention the human rights of Irish political prisoners. For if the Irish prisoners gain P.O.W. status we will be able to write "H-Block" on the political gravestone of Roy Mason and Britain's other butchers in the North

'A WAR OF LIBERATION'

THE BRITISH ruling class understands what is at stake in Ireland - it is British imperialism which is at stake. The British ruling class well understands that if its rule in Ireland is to be maintained it must defeat the national liberation movement led by the Republican movement.

The British ruling class well under-stands that it must defeat the prisoners struggle for prisoner of war status. And in the British working class must understand that when we gather to defend Irish prisoners we have also to defend the national liberation movement that those prisoners represent.

This is why the question of the prisners is not a question of human rights but a question of a war of liberation. Our stand must be resolute, our message clear and simple, there is a war of liberation in Ireland and we are on one side - the side of the Irish people against the British state.

The captured by the British state. We have the duty not only of marching today in their defence but carrying on after today, the fight in the British working class for opposition to British rule in Ireland till we reach the point where thousands and thousands of British workers take up the struggle of the Irish people for national unity and in-dependence. When we have done that we can say that we have defended the Irish prisoners, we can say that we really do support the Irish people.

THE SUFFERINGS of Irish POWs, the tortures they have and continue to endure in the concentration camps and the tombs constructed for them by the British government are a poignant reminder to us of the imprisonment of the whole Irish nation by British imperialism. We asked you to come out on the streets today to support the prisoners politically by calling for Prisoner of War status and an amnesty for all the prisoners.

There is a great precedent set for us in our demands and in our building a mass campaign on the issue: the precedent set for us by Karl Marx and Freidrich Engels in the last dentury who through the International Working mens Association were able to mobilise 200,000 people on the streets of England to call for an amnest for Fenian prisoners. It is this great example that we ask you to try to emulate. We are asking for a principled

We believe that the truth about Ireland, the truth about H Block, about government directed assassinations and torture, about the brutalisation of prisoners in this country, the murders of Michael Gaughan, Proinsies Stagg, Noel Jenkinsnon and Sean O'Conaill are sufficient propaganda to convince all socialists and anti-imperialists in the working class of this country that the time has com call for an end to the despotism of British

The prisoners demand POW status and we support this demand. A war is being fought in Ireland. It is a war of national liberation. We demand that those who have taken up arms against British imperialism be treated as soldiers.

WESTMINSTER SPATTERED

AS CONDITIONS in 'H' Block, Long Kesh, continue to deteriorate members of the United Troops Out Movement (UTOM) and the Irish Political Prisoners Support Group, held three very successful demonstrations in London two weeks ago, (on Jult 8th).

A taste of reality shattered the British House of Commons when two UTOM members (one a member of the Socialist Workers Party) hurled three bags of horse manure from the gallery onto the area below where M.P.s sit, shouting "what about the conditions in Long Kesh?" "Free Irish Political Prisoners", and "British Troops Out Now".

The bags of manure burst and spattered those M.P.s nearest. A twenty minute adjournment took place, in order to clean up the manure and allow time for the pungent smell to fade.

A statement claimed that: "The demonstration was directed against the British policy in Northern Ireland and British treatment of Irish Political Prisoners".

The statement con-tinued, "Excrement and urine was thrown from the public gallery at M.P.s sitting below as a reminder of the conditions of the Irish prisoners held in Long Kesh H-Block who are demanding political prisoner of war status.

"As part of their campaign more than 300 men are on a cleanliness strike. As a result many of now living in cells which are piled high with excrement and alive with fleas, maggots and lice."

The statement concluded that the House of Commons was selected because the present British Government was responsible for the conditions the prisoners were in.

Political prisoners!

SCOTTISH JOURNALIST Donald McCormick of the BBC's 'Tonight' programme when reporting on the dung-throwing incident in the House of Commons said that the people were protesting over the conditions in which the British Government is holding Political Prisoners in

Not "criminals" "terrorists" but Political Prisoners! That's right Donald!

Disorder in the House

The Honourable gentlemen were seated in the House Quite serene and tranquil, all was quiet as a mouse From somewhere in the Gallery an angry shout there rung And down upon the noble heads showered bags of horse's dung

The jolly channies scattered like discarded fish and chins Where was British courage and the old stiff upper lips? And good old Brit tradition to the four winds was all flung As they all beat a fast retreat pursued by horse's dung

Oh! such a blow to British pride it stabs one like a dirk Not the like was ever seen since the Gallop from Dunkirk It must go down in history like the works of Mao Tse Tung That the British House of Commons fled from bags of horse's dung

The English papers spread the news, the nation was aghast That honourable M.P's and such were made to move so fast Like the great Olympic sprinters their praises will be sung How ancient members "broke the clock" gee'd on by horse's dung

The matter was debated and a member said "Of course Mr. Speaker should request a motion from the Horse" The Chief Whip frowned upon him and said, "Please Hold Your Tongue, Old Chap, your talking nothing but a load of horse's dung

Now everyone is screaming that security is lax When H-Block men supporters can slip in behind their backs No one knows how they got in or from where the stuff was brung But an expert vowed as he sniffed and said that's Irish horse's dung

Now this case should be taken to the Court of Human Rights To stop Irish sympathisers from giving M.P's a fright Permission must be granted to have the culprits hung To protect the Brit from things like - it and nasty horse's dung.

ON the same day as the other protests, demonstrators held up the first day of Summer Sales at Selfridges stores in Oxford Street by handing out leaflets explaining the conditions Irish Political Prisoners were being held in, both in Britain and the occupied Six Counties. They also held a token sit-in in the store (pictured above).

THREE CROWN MURDERS

Dear Friends

I sit in a state of mixed emotions, sadness because of the death of another three valiant young Irishmen whom I knew. I think of their bodies, cold and lifeless, wasted after their lifes blood is gone

I think how the English and has not expired; it has found its their imperialist mentality have always had only one answer to Irish patriots, to smash, suppress and kill them.

I think how they failed with internment, how they failed with torturing people and how even today they are failing with | vain. They died fighting for an Castlereagh and H Blocks, but ideal yet unfulfilled. still the British continue these

I think that maybe genocide is their latest and vet their oldest method - they will fail again.

I think of those often quoted words "It is not those who can inflict the most but those who can endure the most who will

I think that the British don't know and never have known what they are fighting. Even if they did they could not defeat it because of its nature; for it is indestructable.

Three young men dead but their spirit, their driving force

"THE NAME OF THE ASSOCIATION SHALL BE THE GAELIC ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION...

THE ASSOCIATION IS A NATIONAL ORGANISATION WHICH HAS AS ITS BASIC AIM THE STRENGTHENING OF THE NATIONAL IDENTITY IN A 32-COUNTY IRELAND THROUGH THE PRESERVATION AND PROMOTION OF GAELIC GAMES AND PASTIMES

paragraph of the Charter governing the G.A.A. If this is what

The above is the opening the G.A.A. stands for, why then are they silent over the systematic torture and the suffering being endured by over 350 men and women in block, Long Kesh, Crumlin Rd. and Armagh jails, for something which is theirs by right -

They are fighting for the same basic aims as the G.A.A. but use different methods. If the G.A.A. are really concerned about fostering an awareness and love of national ideals in the people of Ireland why have they ignored these Irish people in their fight? Why have they not used their position of influence to call on the British government to grant political status to these brave Irish men and women?

Surely they must make this call on humanitarian grounds at least?

Con Murphy, the President of the G.A.A., came to Belfast I wonder did he even spare a thought for the brave Republicans on the blanket protest?

When these people were free many of them took part in G.A.A. activities. Can the G.A.A. not return some of that support?

The Derry board are the only County board in Ulster to call on the British Government to grant political status. There has been a deafening silence from each of the other eight County Boards.

In our own County of Antrim and especially South Antrim the silence on the plight of the prisoners has been almost overwhelming.

Does the County Antrim board think that if they keep their eyes and ears closed long enough this issue will go away? Maybe they are prepared to drag their feet on this issue the same way they did when the Brits took over Casement Park!

All the G.A.A. County boards should waken up and make their voices heard on this issue. If one of these prisoners on the blanket protest should die would these people who have sat back and ne nothing still be proud to call themselves Irish?

The G.A.A. can call on the support of thousands of people throughout Ireland. Can't this support not be used to help their fellow Irishmen win their just demand for political status. Wake up now before it is too

From a Scottish Republican

Reading "Republican News" is like political fiction regarding the goings on by the Brits and their treatment of political prisoners. Yet we know, unhappily that its true. My heart goes out to the brave sons of Ireland and their families.

Although we have a common enemy, the situation in Alba (Scotland) is obviously on a much lower key although there are winds of change blowing in the streets of our cities

We still are behind the S.N.P. even though they have swallowed the devolution bait but I think every republican knows ultimately that England would refuse even a democratically procured mandate for independence.

But how can we move forward when even the 'Broad left' in this country support the Brit, Labour party at elections! Even the Communists, if they don't have a candidate in the race!

We have a prime example of a political prisoner in Mathew Lyojate (24 years for bank robbery!). Most of the 'Broad left' don't know or don't wish to be concented with the plight this unfortunate freedo fighter who was convicted on trumped up evidence.

However, we are at last building on firm ground as Republicans and we continue to support the Irish cause via ex-patriots in this country but I'd like to see our efforts being reciprocated more fully, both in terms of finance and co-ordination.

Finally, the Irish immigrant population are by and large Brit. Labour Party voters and it would help to a certain extent if they could be convinced to change to S.N.P. possibly as a towards voting Scottish Republican, which would seem a likely step in the near future!

Yours fraternally Ian Crumach Scottish Republican Socialist Clubs (Glasgow).

SOLIDARITY FROM BRITTANY

THE FOLLOWING message of solidarity was sent to 'Republican News' from a group of young Bretons living in Rennes.

"The Irish solidarity collective in Rennes has organised a series of information outings designed to inform the Breton people about the struggle of the political prisoners and the fight of the Irish people against British imperialism.

"By using picture boards, films and leaflets we have covered Rennes population and informed them about Irish struggle national liberation

"The police, acting under instructions made on Friday last, a large number of domiciliary visits (a nice term for early morning raids) in the city and suburbs of Belfast, and arrested some twenty-six persons who were suspected of being connected with the Sinn Fein movement. These prisoners, together with eight others who had been arrested in County Louth, were sent on to Dublin on Saturday

"On Easter Tuesday, 25th April, a party of Belfast police, numbering 200, left the city by motor transport, and until Saturday morning they had been actively engaged in rounding up about 1.500 rebels in various parts of the country. They affected some 300 arrests, and of these 136 have been sent to Dublin, while 130 are confined

Nothing has changed in Belfast since 1916 the old early morning raids, sorry I mean "domiciliary visits", which were so beloved by the R.I.C. have been kept as part of the Brit/ RUC's repressive technoliues.

At present the 'Irish News' is actively compaigning for the re-introduction of the R.U.C., while at the sametime embarking on a propaganda campaign of vilification against the IRA: preying as it does on the natural humanity of the Irish people. Prefering instead to offer the people only insults and inuendo as a form of enlightened inform-part of this insidious A campaign is to claim that the IRA are not like the men of 1916. All of this campaign revolves around the lack of knowledge of what really happened during the Easter Rising in Ireland. Much has been said bout the loss of life over the last nine years of war in North East Ireland, while claiming that in the '16' rising very few lost their lives. Nothing could be further from the truth, in seven days fighting a total of 300 people were killed and one thousand wounded. So much for the low loss of life in the 1916 Risinal IRA bombing today is merely an extension of the campaign started in the Easter Rising. rom 24th April to 1st May, 1916, the men of 1916 burnt, according to Captain Purcell, chief of the Dublin fire brigade, more than £2.5 million worth of buildings; this explodes the myth of their respect for private property. They, the men of '16' had a war to fight, and their enemy is still with us, more than sixty years later. The enemy has not changed since 1916 and the morals, methods and aims of real Republicans have not changed either and let no insidious Brit propagandist tell you otherwise.

-PART THREE

AS A result of the frequent toing and froing between Ireland and the U.S.A. by individuals such as John Hume, Garret Fitzgerald, the Cruiser O'Brien, and the 'Peace People', American politicians are gradually taking a pro-Brit stance on the war here. This traffic is of course all one way.

The refusal of travel visas to republicans to attend conferences and dinners etc. guararantees the pro-Brit boot lickers almost a total monopoly to communicate without political opposition.

At the time when Carter is supposedly concerning himself with human rights internationally all this reveals rank hypocrisy on the part of his administration. Carter's recent statement on Ireland ends fifty years of 'official' silence by the White House on Irish affairs, and has committed the U.S. to support power-sharing and an agreement by the Irish Government on any settlement in the north.

The 19th. Century Brit. Empire-builder, Lord Palmerston once wrote: "AMERICA HAS NO FRIENDS ONLY INTERESTS", and if we dig deep enough we soon discover that this 'official' change of heart has more to do with dollars and cents, rather than any genuine concern for the Irish nation and its people's welfare. Let us now consider the economic realities of Carter's apparent concern for Ireland.

Investment by U.S.

companies in both parts of Ireland is now considerable and growing steadily. And it is in order to protect these interests that Carter has thrown the weight of his administration behind power - sharing plans, (For just the same reasons that led the C.I.A. into a strategy which ousted the democratically elected Leftwing President of Chile, Allende, the U.S. will no doubt increase its Central Intelligence Agency personnel here in the months ahead.) A very radical change has taken place on the part of the U.S.A's overseas investment. They have switched from low technology/high labour projects in the Third World to high technology/low labour projects in Europe. The Survey of Current Business Vol. 57, No. 9 shows that the Free State is increasingly attracting a high share of U.S. investment in Europe.

The to	otal	U.S.	Invest-

The total U.S. Investment in the Free State is 738 Million Dollars which as investment per capita equals 236 Dollars. The reason for so much investment is the comparatively high rate of profit to be gleaned. Two factors are crucial and will continue so in both parts of Ireland in, relation to profitability rates. One is the low level of wages and the other is the high degree of state subsidies to industry.

The overall trend by U.S. investment is aimed at capital intensive industries, which use little labour compared to other industries. Wages in Ireland by Eurostandards pean extremely low, and this is a vital factor. Overall the number of jobs created by American investment is limited, as finance is not directed towards fields where high labour intensity is required as the table below shows. It is correct even to argue that, IN THE MAJORITY OF CASES INVESTMENT EQUALS A RISE IN UN-EMPLOYMENT. example, Gallagher's Cigarettes (Belfast) and Du Pont, (Maydown Industrial Estate, Derry) are two recent cases which put the lie to John Hume's and other pundits' claims, who would have us believe that the 'Almighty Dollar' will save us all by taking us to the promised land of fuller employment and prosperity.

CAPITAL INTENSIVE

Trade & Distribution	33.0

(This was the position in 1976 of U.S. Investment)

Finally, the most staggering point, is that American investment is rapidly approaching the level of British investment in the Free State. At the end of 1974 British investment stood at £312 million compared to that from the U.S. of £200.9 Millions. By early 1976 U.S. investment had risen to £270 Million. We will if this trend continues soon be known as "UNCLE SAM'S OTHER ISLAND".

THE ALGERIAN WAR

by Thomas Fitzpatrick

THE ALGERIAN war lasted nearly eight years — almost twice: as long as the first world war of 1914 - 1918. France's 130 years involvement in Algeria had started with the toppling of the last Bourbon throne, and the war itself was to cause the collapse of the Fourth French Republic itself. It came close to bringing down General de Gaulle and his fifth Republic and - twice - to confronting metropolitan France with the threat of civil war. It was a war of "peace" in that no real declaration of hostilities was ever made. The war itself was horribly savage, it brought death to an estimated on million Muslim Algerians and the expulsion of the same number of European settlers (The Pieds Noirs).

The Algerian war was victorious in defeating French Imperialism, but the monster France created in Algeria the pied noirs (Settlers) resisted to the last minute, Algerian Independence. This culminated in the fanatical horrors perpetrated by the OAS (L'Organisation del Armee Secrete).

This is a story of an heroic and tragic war of liberation. This was shown two weeks ago on a TV programme entitled 'Children of the Revolution'. As was mentioned on this programme it is one thing to start a revolution, it is quite another to achieve victory. But once victory is achieved then the job of re-construction is a monumental task. We in Ireland can and must learn from the Algerian struggle because until British Imperialism and it's allies are defeated in Ireland we cannot start the re-construction of our social, political, and cultural life.

PART ONE - SETIF 1945

Setif was a watershed in Algerian history (just as the 1916 Easter rising was a watershed in Irish History). The market town of Setif situated on a high and treeless plain eighty miles west of the city of Constantine. On the morning of the 8th May 1945 the inhabitants of this largely Muslim town were preparing for a mass march. It was V.E. day; for Europe, the first day of peace following the Nazi capitulation the previous night. Setif was always known for it's radical Arab nationalism. Once the sub-prefect (police chief) of Setif heard about the Arab demonstration, he agreed to let it proceed for after all, were they not nominally celebrating the triumph of the "Mother" country and her allies, they were also to lay a wreath at the war monument in memory of all the Algerian troops who had fallem in the recent conflict. However he did impose a strict ban against the march assuming any political

But as soon as the procession had formed up outside, it was clear that the ban had been defied, slogans such as long live a free and independent Algeria appeared, there was also for the first time, the flourishing of the green and white flag, which was later to become the flag of the FLN liberation movement, the police chief at once ordered the seizure of the banners, the moment the police moved in to do this there was a riot. As a result a number of arab youths were shot dead. For five days rioting continued, the arabs enraged by the police killings took reprisals on the pied noirs (Europeans). The French army were called in to "restore order".

The repression the French army unleashed was savage. Muslim prisoners serving time for petty-crime were dragged from prisons and lunched on the spot by the crazed white European settlers (this was condoned by the French army). At one village alone 219 Arab men women and children were shot out of hand. At Guelma where the European fury reached it's peak, the Algerian Community Party, who had a strong base amongst the European workers, demanded and were well to the fore in the work of organising reprisals against any Arab, they called for the leaders of the demonstration to be put in front of the firing squad.

The French army, navy and air force were used to restore 'order'. When it was all over there was an estimated 45,000 arabs dead, many as a result of summary executions or by the strafing from planes or the battleships shelling the Muslim quarters from the harbour. In France the atrocity was played down, yet all this was carried out on the orders from de Gaull's coalition government, on both scores it is to be noted that the communists ministers shared, in France, responsibility without a murmur.

Setif was the point of no return in Algerian history and things were never to be the same again. The 7th regiment of Algerian Tirailleurs, a unit that had distinguished itself on the battlefields of Europe against the Nazis disembarked shortly after Setif. Many of these men came from Setif, they were utterly appalled by the stories they heard. A number of these returning soldiers were later to become the leaders of the FLN. Among them was a much decorated sergeant, named Ben Billa, he wrote; "The horrors of Setif in May 1945 succeeded in persuading me of the only path; Algeria for the Algerians." Ben Bella was later to become one of the main organisers of the liberation war which began on All Saints Day 1954. After the revolution he became the first president of an Independent Algeria. In effect the shots fired at Setif represented the first volly of the Algerian war. For nine and a half years later France reaped the whirlwind of Setif. The leadership of the future FLN were born out of a bitterness of Setif.

Brits-Out demo in Edinburgh

ON THURSDAY 6th of July the Royal Scots Dragoons guards paraded their hardware along Princes St. in Edinburgh to mark the 300th anniversary of their proud part in upholding Britain's imperialist glory about the Opposition to this event had grown in preceeding months and the Edinburgh Irish Solidarity Campaign organised the "July Troops Out Committee to campaign against Britain's role in Ireland witht the support of most of the revolutionary left groups in Edinburgh.

Every vehicle in that parade Tanks, Saracen Armoured Cars. Ferret and Fox Scot Cars - are strategic vehicles in the British armies repressive role in Ireland.

These were met by a demonstration who gave good voice to the protest against the conditions of Irish political prisoners and the army's murder and torture in Ireland. The slogan "End British Torture, Troops Out Now", echoed down Princes Street to meet the "glorious" military toadies on their menacing metal junk.

Sympathy for this protest expressed by a surprising number of the people who were watching the parade.

This demonstration followed a month of publicity by the July

Irish Solidarity Campaign about the torture of political prisoners and their fight for political status on the blanket in 'H' Block, Long Kesh. A series of leaflets distributed in the Labour Movement, Women's Movement Students Movement in Edinburgh began the work of fighting the idea that Britain has any right to repress Ireland.

Work will have to be done to make this support real. The repression of Ireland is no longer going to remain a censored subject on the streets of Edinburgh. The Irish Solidarity Campaign in Edinburghwill work closely with the Glasgow Campaign to force

BIRMINGHAM CONFERENCE

THE FOLLOWING open letter is being circulated to all Labour Party and trade union branches in the English Midlands.

For more information on this conference please contact:

The Conference Planning Committee, 65 Woodville Road, Kings Heath, Birmingham, 14.

We are writing to you to ask whether your organisation would be prepared to sponsor a broadly based Midlands Conference on Northern Ireland, which we are planning for November-11th 1978, to be held in

For many years now British troops have been present in force in Belfast and throughout the six counties, and there is still little sign of any kind of political solution to the problems facing the Catholic and Protestant communities. The nature of those problems and the role of the troops is far from clear in the minds of very many people in the Labour movement and alsewhere, yet there has been very little informed discussion of Northern Ireland in Labour Parties or Trade Unions. This is specially unfortunate in view of the absence of such discussion in the media. One leading television commentator, Jonathan Dimbleby, has gone so far as to say:
"There has not been a serious detailed account of the history of Northern Ireland because it is a delicate political issue..., the reason is because the political instutions, of the troops is far from clear in the

because the political institutions, BBC, IBA, and the British Government don't wish us to know about the situation in Ireland."

The November 11th Conference will be an attempt to help break this will be an attempt to help break this silence with speakers on the history of Ireland from Partition to the present 'troubles', and on the current situation in the north. It is hoped that several speakers will be from the six counties. We also hope to include a session on the effects of the war in a session on the effects of the war in Ireland on the British political situation and the British Labour Movement, We have begun to approach speakers from a broad range of political viewpoints, such as from the NCCL, the Relatives Action Committee, the Better Life for All Campaign, and the Tribunal on Campaign, and the Tribo Britain's Presence in Ireland.

In order to guarantee a broadly based and representative conference, we are asking you to sponsor this

London UTOM Protests

THE LONDON united troops out movement has organised a series of demonstrations about 'H' Block at the beginning of July

At the first protest, four members sat on the pavement just outside the busy Shepherds Bush market, 1,000 leaflets were distributed and speakers linked up the struggle of the Irish people with that of black people and highlighted how soldiers serving in Belfast are recruited as mercenaries to fight against liberation fighters in Zimbabwe. This protest was lively and many 'H' Block posters were sold.

On 1/7/78 West London UTOM organised another protest in Southall (a predominantly Asian area),. The Irish struggle was explained as a colonial war (Asian people of course understand this immediatley) and links between the National and Loyalists were

CENSORSHIP AT THE BBC

THE ARTICLE which we print below appeared on the front page of the July issue of the British trade union paper 'Film and Television Technician' (journal of the Association of Cinematograph, Television and allied Technicians.) The article highlights the continuing censorship operated by the BBC toeing the Mason-line, However LIMITED and TIMID such English trade union opposition to Brit rule here is, it is most definitely welcome.

sorship in television programmes on Northern Ireland has come to the surface. Colin Thomas, a documentary director and a member of both the ABAS and the ACTT, has resigned from the BBC over what he believes to be censorship of the two Northern Ireland programmes in which he was involved - one on a village called Ballintoy on the North Antrim coast and the the city on Londonderry (the latter has now the title The City on the Border).

In his letter of resignation, Colin Thomas referred to the process of censorship and said In the case of the Ballintoy film the process has been blatant BBC senior management in Relfast have decided that my impression of the village of is not theirs Ballintoy that therefore the film I made should not be transmitted without substantial changes. In the Derry film the process has been more subtle - there has been a process of gradual compromise (which in the early stages I was myself a party to) ending up with a film which in my view overlooks a substantial body of opinion in that city.

Why I resign

I do not wish to be party to censorship, whether it is exercised by senior management or by myself, and it is for that reason that I wish to resign!"

On June 7th a joint ABAS/ ACTT meeting was held at the Bush Hotel, Shepherds Bush. After considerable discussion which was not confined to the issue of the Ballintoy and Londonderry films, following motions were passed:

1) That this joint meeting ACTT/ABAS is concerned about evidence of increasing

'Once again the issue of cen- and unreasonable censorship within the BBC and calls upon the N.E.C. of both Unions as a matter of urgency to set up a joint committee to monitor possible censorship and to produce a formula with the BBC to enable the Unions management to have formal discussions on what is considered to be censorship,

Programme maker

2) That this joint ABAS/ AC// meeting deeply regrets the fact that Colin Thomas has resigned from the BBC. We recognise his integrity as a programme maker and support his stand on the principles involved.

We further demand that no subsequent victimisation of Colin Thomas shall take place after his resignation has taken effect, and call upon the NEC of both Unions to ensure that he is not denied the opportunity to make programmes for the BBC in the future.

Protect and support

It also calls upon both NEC to consider what steps should in future be taken to protect and support individuals whose programmes the BBC wishes to cut or substantially alter or suppress and to prevent further resignations of this sort becoming necessary,'

This deplores the actions of the BBC in controlling the transmission of open information about Northern Ireland,"

4) This joint meeting of ACTT/ABAS requests the NEC to black the film about Ballintoy - A Bridge of Sorts if it is altered against the wishes of the director. The NEC are also requested to seek a viewing of the original film by union representatives."

pointed to by the four speakers. 1,000 leaflets distributed.

On 2/7/78 North West London UTOM organised a blanket potest at the Gaelic Games in Roundwood Park, Willesden. Thousands of people were there and a blanket protest was set up outside the Holidays in Ireland tent. The stewards at first said it was not allowed but mutterings in the gathered crowd persuaded them not to pursue this further. The protest continued for 2% hours and 4 people sat in blankets. There wa always a crowd of probably more than 100 people around at any one time and speakers from UTOM, PAC and Sinn Fein spoke about conditions in 'H' Block to an attentive crowd who were upset at what they heard. Literature taken was sold quickly. People were urged to come on the demo on the 9th July past,"

Republican protests n English gaols

A SERIES of token hunger-strikes and roof top protests were carried out in six English gaols on Friday July 7th. The gaols were Albany, Long Lartin, Wormwood Scrubs, Gartree and Wakefield. Over 80 Irish political prisoners were involved in the protests.

Alistar Logan, a Guildford Solicitor, who campaigns on behalf of Irish political prisoners in England Sheridan, Gerry Mealey, informed the meeting that Ronnie McCartney, Eddie informed the meeting that of the 40 cases before the European Commission on protesters spent 52 hours Human Rights claiming brutality in English prisons they sang Republican songs one has been accepted, that of Sean Campbell, serving for their comrades in the 10 years in Long Lartin 'H' Blocks, Crumlin and 10 years in Long Lartin Prison and another four Armagh. cases were being seriously

Joan Maynard said that the prisoners took the action to highlight their demands for humane visiting conditions, political status and the right to serve their sentences in Ireland.

Joan Maynard also told reporters that Irish prisoners in English gaols were subjected to discrimination, brutality and solitary confinement

From Long Lartin to Wakefield

VINCENT DONNELLY Proinsias Stagg died (was (Tyrone) serving life imprisonment, went on hunger-strike on 19th May because of an illness to which he felt no real treatment was being given. He had demanded proper medical treatment which included x-rays. This was refused, as was his daily milk which had been prescribed by the prison doctor.

Because of his determination to get treatment and to establish the cause and nature of illness, Donnelly was transferred from Long Lartin on 4th June to Wakefield prison. A very long journey for him in his poor state of health, and under the conditions in which he had to travel

GARTREE PROTEST

THE ROOF-TOP sit-in by eight Republican prisoners at Gartree maximum security prison, Leic estershire, ended after 52 hours.

The eight men, who climbed on to the roof of the kitchen block on Friday morning, were demanding political prisoner status and a transfer to Ireland to serve the rest of their sent-

They were out again on Sunday as the weather broke and - as the London demonstration came to an end - they

AMERICAN STREET PROTEST

PROTEST PARADE - Members of the Irish National Caucus of New Jersey march in solidarity with the blanket

ON Saturday June 24, a Human Rights for Ireland Demonstration was held outside the White House in Washington, D.C.

The Metro (Maryland) Irish National Caucus, along with Irish Nor. Aid organised this very successful demonstration. This was the second large turnout in the U.S.A. expressing concern for deteriorating conditions of Human Rights in Ireland. The first such demonstration was held in Elizabeth New Jersey, on April 24th, where a parade was led by the Mayor of Elizabeth Tom Dunn. The parade was follow by a Rosary recited in Irish for the men on the blanket. Much valuable publicity resulted.

The Washington demonstration was well attended despite many supporters participating in the A.O.H. Convention in Killarney. A bus load from Nor. Aid units in the New York area ensured more regional coverage. The rally swelled by passers by who, upon understanding the value of the demonstration, joined in.

Speakers were Mathew Hannon, Metro I.N.C., and Bill Kelly, Div. II A.O.H. New York. Credit must go to Mary Baggesly, Northern Aid D.C., for having done so much to ensure the success of this demonstration. Jack O'Brien also of Northern Aid has left all of us feeling secure with the knowledge that all is well with the "Cause" in D.C.

Presently plans are shaping up for a nationwide demonstration in the Autumn

 RAC PLANS

AT THE second indoor meeting held in County Antrim on Sunday 16th July, two dozen Relatives Action Committees from all over the Six Counties discussed the organising of demonstrations on a Six County basis to step up the campaign to win back political status.

The first proposed activity was the staging of a 24 hour tokan hungar-strike by the relatives and friends of the protesting prisoners. It was pointed out that this activity should take place at venue all over the Six Counties beginning at 11,00a.m. on July 28th and end the following day at 11,00a.m. on July 28th and end the following day at 11,00a.m.

A Belfsst delegate informed the meeting that the idea of the token strike originated from the hunger strike by Chilean exiles in Britain and elsewhere protesting about a second strike by Chilean exiles in Britain and elsewhere protesting about the torture of their imprisoned relatives, initially, some delegates expressed the view that this type of activity was ineffective and would receive little or no press or T.V. coverage.

A delegate from Derry out-

Counties should also stage a 24 hour hunger-strike and sympathetic groups in Britain should do the same, A delegate from Trade Union Campagin Against Repression (TUCAR) informed the meeting that his organisation would partake in the suggestion that token-strikes take place in Britain especially outside British Government buildings, like the British House of Commons. After some further discussion the meeting spreed to Stage 24 hour

After some further discussion the meeting spreed to stage 24 hour token-hunger-strikes in towns, village, throughout the 6, 26 Counties and Britain on the 29 — 30th July. The meeting then went on to discuss the organisation of the mast demonstration marking the 10th Anniversary of the first civil rights march from Coalisland to Dungannon, on August 20th.

The discussion was opened by a Tyrone delegate who proposed that another meeting be held on the 10th August in Coalistand to finalise all the necessary details for the mass demonstration. He also informed the meeting that Tyrone Central RAC world a 2000 Lessless for meeting that Tyrone Central RAC would produce 30,000 leaflets for

Some controvery arose when the Tyrone delegate informed the meeting that a speaker from the Irish Independence Party would be speaking at the March on August 20th, The body of the fall impressed upon the Tyrone delegation the necessity to invite speakers from those organisations who had prisoners protesting for political status and those groups who not only supported the prisoners demands but also unequivocally supported the struggle for national independence. The Tyrone delegates agreed to review the platform speakers. Some discussion then took place among the delegates about the demands of the August 20th march. Most people felt that the march's central theme should be the political status demand placing it firmly within the context of the national liberation struggle. It was also agreed to carcy the individual names and the liberation struggle. It was also agreed to carry the individual names and the length of sentence of each prisoner at the demonstration along with banners and placards demanding P.O.W. status.

The meeting concluded with an appeal from the chair to the delegates to work harder than ever before for the protests on 29th — 30th July but especially for the August 20th march to make it a huge success.
